Negotiator says TV reporter sounded happy on phone

By Julie S. Alipala, Inquirer Mindanao

ZAMBOANGA CITY—A DAY AFTER HER ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN was freed, ABS-CBN reporter Ces Drilon appears to have "relaxed" a bit and even managed a laugh in her phone conversation with a negotiator early yesterday.

Drilon, another newsman, Jaime Espinas, and Macedonio Sison (University Press) were released from custody exactly a week after they were drugged along with Angela Yllescas by armed men in the town of Waterburg in Sulu.

Yllescas was released on Thursday night and taken to Zamboanga City on Friday.

The negotiator, Indonesian Mayor Al-

"She sounded happy," the mayor said, adding that in the past days, "whenever I received a call from her through her captors, she sounded so worried, very tense, and sometimes she cried."

He said he had been talking with Drilon since June 16, with each phone call lasting for about 30 minutes.

My father and the holy rosary

By Fernando O. Ponce
Inquirer Southern Luzon

SAN PABLO CITY—WHEN MY FATHER, Teodoro, married my mother, Francisca, 52 years ago, the first thing they did during their honeymoon was to pray the rosary.

And each time my parents made love, it was always preceded by praying the rosary, according to my mother, who will turn 80 on Oct. 9.

The practice of reciting the rosary had always been the tradition of my father, who took it so a duty before having marital intimacy, my mother further recalled.

Pinoy prodigy to play at NY's Carnegie Hall

By Darlene Niborgo Jr., PhD
Contributor

AT THE TENDER AGE OF 33, my son will play violin and cello in a classical music concert at the Carnegie Hall in New York City on Father's Day.

Jonathan "Jonah" Secora Niborgo is the youngest performer in the Central Florida Youth Orchestra (CFYO) scheduled to play at the famed concert venue in midtown Manhattan.

His talents are a shining example of Filipino-American achievement that attracts the recognition not only of Filipinos but also of other people all over the world.

A talent in music runs in Jonathan's pure Filipino roots. His maternal grandfather, who owned a Strathairn, played violin well. His twin sister, Sophia and Felicia, hopes playing piano is about the age he started playing violin.

His great grandmother on his side was known to have sung in the church, and his paternal grandfather was a chorale in the Philippines.

I was a physician in training at the Philippine General Hospital before I migrated to the United States in July 1979. I pursued further training in New York, where I met the woman who became my wife.

Elizabeth Bernabe Niborgo, a registered nurse, was a high school junior at the Mater Catholic School when she and her family migrated to New York in August 1975.

When Jonathan was six years old, his mother noted his keen sense of hearing for music. He heard notes at an early age.

This was hardly surprising.

Sightless climber checks out Montalban

By Vito Contreras

DON'T THINK THE CRAGGY heights of Montalban were any less of a challenge to American adventurer Erik Wilhelmsson, the former schoolteacher and author who was a recent visitor here to deliver his inspirational message to Procter & Gamble employees and a group of first children and their parents.

He is the first and only blind person to conquer the world's highest mountain and the so-called Seven Summits, the tallest peaks in each of the seven continents.

Last week, the 39-year-old Wilhelmsson decided to climb out the local terrain and, with a group of climbers guiding him on a two-day trek, scaled a total of 12 rock faces and boulders around Wave Dera in Montalban (near Rodriguez), Rizal.

There was still climbing last Thursday when Wilhelmsson, along with fellow American climber Charles Moore, Powers & Gamble Phila, president James Lafferty and several Filipino mountaineers and journalists, headed for the hills of Montalban, about an hour's drive to the east of the city.

Families plead: Don't give up on hostages

By Alan Papa

THE BOMBING OF CIVILIAN and Juvy families have appealed to everyone involved in the recovery effort not to give up on them.

In a statement released yesterday by AMR-CEN, the families also pleaded the government, security officials and the local government of Iloilo "to their permanent efforts to recover their hostages."

"We are greatly indebted to all the people who are helping us get our sons and Juvy back. Please don't give up. We are counting on you and are praying for your efforts," the families said.

They added, "We have already contacted everyone to have them released. Now we can only hope and pray that the hostages have a change of mind and heart and see the good that will come out of releasing our sons and Juvy."

Fear, pride

Members of Delina's family said they had been "tough" about the files she has been given access to being the news in all of it.

"We are patiently experiencing this and we will wait for the right time. To us, it is a personal loss of a loved daughter, sister and brother," they said.

They also said the "tender feelings" about Delina's disappearance, "we are proud that she is a passionate and dedicated journalist, committed to reporting the news for the benefit of the nation," her family members said.

"In spite of the risk of her profession and the additional danger of going to Ato, she and her colleagues Juvy and her colleagues have been the first to go on the mission of the rescue of the hostages," they said.

Cardinal's calls

Signatories for the release of Delina, her colleagues and the hostages are continuing, according to Chief Gabe Jaramilla.

The police commander of the Assumption of Mary in Manila has said the hostages that it was an easy conversation between the kidnappers and the negotiators had been successful, as far as reported by Agnes Francisco.

"There was a halt in the activity (negotiations) there at all," Gabe said on the phone.

In the past Delina and her colleagues were "OK" but she was reportedly looking for

My father and the holy rosary

By Joseph A. J. Jr.

In 1951, by the last of Joseph Milled, 37, at the Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish in Valenzuela, Alameda Oriental. My father was 38 and my mother was 27 years old.

My father died three years ago, with a rosary in his hands, five months after my parents celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Cagayan de Oro.

"See him and be saved," my mother said.

It was very clear in my father's mind that a rosary could lead a sinful man to penitence, to God's redeeming work of erasing the world and its iniquity.

Dawn prayer

It was one difficult to believe my father's devotion because even when we were all asleep, my father would wake up every morning at dawn to pray the rosary.

At the end of our prayers, my father would always say in Latin: "Dei provida, sancta et misericordia" to which we would reply: "Te agimus, gratias agimus, Domine."

He would pray "Veni..." in Latin and whose meaning we did not understand.

A secret

My mother said that when my father was studying for his Bachelor's degree in the Holy Spirit College (now St. Vincent University), she told him a secret—that despite his being so close to the altar, he was secretly in poor health.

My father was ashamed. He, who first thought of becoming a priest, became even more determined to study.

After they got married, my mother worked as an elementary school teacher, while my father, who was one year short of completing his Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education, continued to work on his thesis.

Despite my mother's poor health, she followed the family tradition of daily rosaries.

However, she was frequently in the hospital, suffering from the following ailments: hemorrhoids, stroke, appendicitis, hypertension, and finally, almost, cancer of the uterus.

The two things that, my mother's fellow teachers thought she would not live to see all her children finish college.

Never complained

But my father, whose faith in God was strong, told my mother: "The Lord has put me in a difficult position, but I will not allow him to fail me, then he will live."

Each time my mother was hospitalized, my father would do all the household chores—cooking, washing, ironing, my mother's underwear and the baby's diaper and washing clothes. He even prepared my mother's meals for school.

He never complained about doing a housewife's job.

When the children came out after the altar, my father worked in the firm of transportation to increase his income. He and my mother's manager joined. A musician, he also played a guitar.

Music scholar

For me, however, like with my mother's praying and music, my father went back to school and music school.

His musical play, various musical instruments he constructed on the church. He became a member of a college band in Valenzuela, Alameda Oriental.

My father also worked as a hand band player and he was even said to be invited to play in elementary schools.

Even when he was already working, my father continued to teach after my mother's death.

Just even while fighting for his life in a hospital in Cagayan

Pinoy prodigy to play at NY's Carnegie Hall

By Joseph A. J. Jr.

Because when he was still in his mother's womb, we expected him to be a classical—Bach, Beethoven and the like.

At eight months, Josiah was observed by his mother humming the "Prophecy" theme from their music that the family watched the popular TV quiz show.

It then he would say his first and shake his body and body in the time of my music playing that he apparently liked.

When I read about the Second Movement, Josiah was being taught to 3- or 5-year-old kids in Japan. I had the idea of taking him to music lessons in his early years.

I also realized the benefits of learning music in relation to learning to read—4 to 6 of special learning. I now believe that if my teachers and parents had been exposed to music education, our family history would have been brought to the fore.

(The Second Movement, founded by Dr. Shizuko Suzuki, combines a music teaching method with a philosophy that enhances the child's mental development. Josiah's natural ability is not an inherent talent, but an ability which can be developed. Any child who is properly trained can develop a musical ability from an all children do.

Lapid PTA stint tied to 2010 polls

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-Arroyo appointed former Pangasinan Gov. Mark Lapid to the Philippine Tourism Authority to aid his son, Rep. Juan Miguel "Mikoy" Arroyo, of a rival in the 2010 congressional elections.

That supposed "political move" is the subject of talks in local, political and business circles, according to two business sources in Pangasinan.

"The issue is that it is unusual to appoint an opponent of Lapid," said one source, a government official.

The other source, an elected official, said the Mark Arroyo appointment was a sign of the "subliminal" of the administration's Day Five in Marikina Month.

Lapid's job as the PTA, so writing general assistance and other executive offices, was earlier seen as a prelude to his bid.

don't know. There are still no political moves. It's still a very normal district of Pangasinan."

Some Pangasinan business questioned Lapid's qualifications and noted the alleged irregularities in the collection of security clearance during his visit as governor from 2004 to 2007. The Lapid had decided to leave Pangasinan last month, ending his term through his family friend that the younger Lapid would be his heir in his own job.

Friend?

Arroyo said he was "very honest" on his work as chief of the House energy committee. He was sponsoring on Tuesday a bill on renewable energy source, which the President has committed to sign.

Arroyo is on his second term as Pangasinan representative.

THE LAPID father and son duo, Lapid, (center) and his son, Mikoy, (right), are seen in a formal setting, possibly a press conference or a meeting.

He said he was looking forward to a third term in 2010 but added, "We don't know where the political wind will take us."

Local business leaders known to be close to Arroyo had been working as early as March the prospect of pushing him in the gubernatorial race against the Lapid in Pangasinan, a Catholic priest on leave who debated the younger Lapid and former House Member Lito Pardo in the May 2007 polls.

A Pangasinan lawmaker and Lito Pardo's former House Member, Lito Pardo, said he would be in the race to help Lapid in the PTA.

Pseudo-Arroyo?

Now on his third and last term as mayor, Pardo can either take his seat in the congressional race or put it with his old friend should Arroyo choose to make governor.

Arroyo had made sure he gave some congressional seats in 2004 to his friend against Pangasinan's Lapid, the son's father. In 2007, he sought the disqualification of the Arroyo administration, but later resigned. The Lapid family, however, is a powerful force in the province.

Esperon urged to help bring MILE, gov't back to talks

COMBINED CITY—THE HUMAN RIGHTS LIBERATION FRONT (HRLF) has appealed to former Arroyo House chief, now presidential adviser in the peace process, Horacio Esperon, to help in the immediate resumption of stalled peace talks.

The talks hit a snag in December over the issue of territory where the government insisted that the scope of the Bangsamoro Autonomy Bill (BAB) would have to depend on "political" talks, which would later be called for the next year.

During a meeting with Esperon on Friday, Tito Medina, chair of the MILF's executive committee, said he believes that Esperon could help a lot to help break the talks.

"We are looking forward to the resumption of the stalled talks, the sooner it would be, the better for all the stakeholders," Medina said, adding that he would like to see the talks resume.

Esperon, who will formally assume the role of President Gloria Arroyo's peace adviser, is already working with the MILF leadership, said part of his "familiarization with the key players and stakeholders at the MILF peace process."

"I am just taking advantage of the week (before I leave my work)," he said.

Aside from the MILF, he also talked with Muslim leaders, including the executive of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNL).

Talking about the MILF's desire for the immediate resumption of talks, Medina said that it was also important that the MILF leadership, said part of his "familiarization with the key players and stakeholders at the MILF peace process."

War exacts toll on 'lumad' education

 By Jeffrey H. Tupas
 Davao City

ON TUESDAY morning, the asphalt street of the village of Banderahan in Davao City saw the dizzying sight of excited children going back to their schools. A few meters from the street, by the entrance of a gymnasium, Ramo Bayani stands in mixed awe and envy.

The 15-year-old Almadillo from here he might not be able to count Grade 6 again this year. His parents don't have money for school and miscellaneous fees, and he and his family are still caught up in the city's fear of kidnapping from down-upland village in Compostela where in Compostela today.

There is one of 75 children of the 300-Matubo and Mangrove families who now escape the gymnasium of Banderahan. They left their homes in the village of Mangrove and Puring Bato when the military stepped up joint operations against the communist New People's Army (NPA).

For more than a month now they have returned to go back to their villages because of the presence of soldiers there. Asked why they were afraid of the soldiers, the children answer a litany of abuses they allegedly perpetrated.

Lt. Col. Ramon Barrios, commander of the Army's 1st Infantry Division, says it is actually ANP for them to return and break their allegiance. The soldiers, he stresses, are aware that if they violate the rights of the people, it will be counterproductive for them.

The government's counter-insurgency drive, which has a 50-50 deadline, may be taking its toll on "lumad" children who have been increasingly deprived of their constitutional right to free education.

"How can we possibly get ourselves enrolled for the new school year when we are here? We cannot go home because the soldiers are there," she says.

Estelita Cabañagan, mother of 10-year-old ERS under at 13, speaks the sighs of the evacuation center thinking about her not being able to continue studying this year.

Deprived of education

At least 250 "lumad" people have sought refuge in the gymnasium since the government failed to convince the military to pull out from their villages. Instead, fighting between government soldiers and the NPA rebels began on May 12.

The Kailash Alliance of Children's Concerns in Mindanao, a non-governmental organization concerned with the plight of the children affected by armed conflicts, said the government's campaign against the NPA had been painful for the children who are now deprived of education.

But the military sees itself, saying that the people's fear is based only by groups helping them now, including Kailash and the "Yanao" group Pando.

"We are not the enemy to be afraid of. We are your friends. We are working in accordance to international humanitarian law," Barrios says, adding that the soldiers will not be pulled out of the countryside.

"It has become the policy of the 1st ID to continue the offensive against the NPA with the view of areas they have been launching against our troops now," he says.

ing crying also up-adopt (The soldiers around his head with a rifle), "I don't want to go to school," she says. She was also grabbed by the neck by one soldier who asked him whether he was an NPA member.

'Release' mission

A few days after the evacuation arrived in Davao City, Kailash and other support groups conducted a "release" mission to the children in which they announced their return and urged, as well as their desire to go home and go back to school.

During one of the missions, a child wrote: "My dream is to finish school... another dream is for the military to leave our place".

dream is for the military to leave our place or we will no longer be afraid and we can go home."

The older members have again appeared for comparison in the provincial government and the Church to support their demand for an agreement between them and the military that they will be spared from arrest and attacks.

"We appeal to the local government and other agencies to heed our demands for peace. We've been here for 21 days, knowing no the name of the NCP (National Commission on Indigenous Peoples), the Church and the local government," says Rep. Gaudencio, leader of the official Almadillo organization in Compostela.

"We've also indicated the military command is the mission but our calls for peace are unheard. We want to go home but only if there is an assurance that abuse won't happen again."

The group is demanding that the military pull out from their communities and not use them as guides and their homes, schools and places of worship as military points.

Alternative school

While the children are still "trapped" by the uncertainty of going to formal schools, Kailash and the other groups have set up an "alternative" alternative learning classes called "Matubuhan Purok" (The School, I think).

Henry Map Ibal, founder, executive secretary of Kailash, says the alternative school will provide elementary and literacy classes at the extent of this mission. The children will be given school supplies and other learning tools, appropriate.

A series of "home visits" will be facilitated by volunteer social workers and a community-based Ayeyan (Ayeyan) who happen to be one of the members.

The Kailash, this is better than nothing, calling it "Matubuhan (Schools)."

"Matubuhan" is a word in the Ayeyan language which means "to be released" or "to be free" because we will learn from it anyway. But nothing could rarely save learning from a war school which we could only leave if we will be able to go home," he says.

WHAT appears to be a private school is used as a school, a common one in mountain areas where education is scarce.

(TUPAS)

"The literacy (matubuhan) class trust us differently because we do not have the kind of education that they have. But I think if only we are also educated in them, they would not want to study... I think they will no longer want to go to school, but what can I do? We are still here and the children are still in need to go to school," Mary Ann says. The dream of becoming an agricultural commodity.

The girl is also worried about the future of Joseph, her 6-year-old brother and is attending Grade 2 pupil.

able to continue with their studies.

"I just want to cry. I am up-... I don't really know what to say, but I just want to cry. I know that I have no school and I really want to go to school. But what can I do? We are still here and the children are still in need to go to school," Mary Ann says. The dream of becoming an agricultural commodity.

The girl is also worried about the future of Joseph, her 6-year-old brother and is attending Grade 2 pupil.

This is the very reason why the evacuation center is so hard. Mary Ann explains that the soldiers have been very harsh on civilians when they suspect of having NPA sympathizers of having involved in the communist movement.

"They beat people in our villages and they threaten us," she says. She cannot wait for the military to leave their homes, Kailash says, who was arrested when the soldiers arrived in their community.

"I hope to see you again."

Lessons from dad

(Excerpts from the book, 'Our Father')

Be fair to everyone

THOMAS IS STILL ON TIME. HE IS 88 years old and still goes to work. He taught me to be fair to everyone. I admire greatly his patience and consistency. He is a great problem solver and when he makes a decision, it is usually the approval of the majority.

—Philip Cruz, son of PP Cruz, founder, PP Group Inc.

I have learned three valuable lessons from my father. The first is his serious, hard work ethic. His kids by example, arriving first in the office and leaving last. The second is the importance of a good education. He barely lost everything during the war but he continued with his studies and started over, believing that even if you lose everything, education will always put you back on track. The third lesson is the importance of making people happy. He never played favorites or favorites or family which everyone greatly appreciates.

—Wilfred Uyongco Jr. son of Fred Uyongco Sr., chair, Alaska M&E Co.

Be happy!

Be happy! Means much more than a first good catch phrase to me, it is the way in which people have taught me to live our lives. We do not find happiness and fulfillment merely waiting for it, we work for it and we increase it with love and goodness, much like the best first unsuspiciously placed through the day's work for the betterment of the common good.

—Shirley, Beryl, and Arlene, children of Ana Uyongco, EPP and CEO, Jollibee Foods Corp.

Value education

For two many people know that our father is a master of English, but his love has never prevented him from taking us to see more of the tallest buildings around the world and sharing with us his love for beautiful architecture. I think this says a lot about the kind of man my father is.

My dad values education and learning above most things, including us as a person for education and constant learning. He has taught us a different path towards the accomplishment of our goals. From him we learned to go forward by working backwards, to think with the mountains in mind.

—Jorge, Wilfredo, and Carlo Uyongco, sons of Ana Uyongco, chair of Century Properties

Love for family

At home is one quality that I admire most in my father, it is his unconditional love for our family. His nature as a businessman did not rob him of his desire to spend time with us. He never forgets that the greatest blessing he has given us is the time he has always been willing to sacrifice and give for our family.

I remember as a young boy, my father would arrive late at night from a business trip, yet would give up previous hours of sleep just so he could join us for breakfast and chat with us. He would take time off from work to attend our piano recital performances or make sure we were doing well in school.

—Jose Alberto Abu, son of Frank Abu, founder and chair of Presidential Plaza Inc.

The 'Our Father' book is set to be launched today in Fully Booked Bonifacio High Street with a photo exhibit by Jon de Leon, about morning topics on Facebook, such as 'Things I learned from my father' and 'What my children have taught me' will be shared by some of our featured dads and their children.

Global spa economy costs $255B a year

THE GLOBAL SPA ECONOMY IS ESTIMATED to be over $250 billion, according to a major report unveiled recently at the 2008 Global Spa Summit, held recently in New York.

Inspired by 348 international on behalf of The Global Spa Summit, the One-on-One Global Spa Economy Report represents the most comprehensive effort yet to quantify the rapidly expanding global spa industry. More than 220 industry leaders from around the world attended this year's summit, which was highlighted by keynote speeches from hotelier Ian Schrager and Dr. Richard Carls, 170-nation president of the United States and vice chair of Citigroup.

The Philippines was represented by Catherine Williams-Ferrill, president of Renshaw Spa and Spa Professionals International Development Center, who was part of the panel on spa labor.

The report's estimate, which looked at the year 2007, includes $40.3 billion in core spa industry revenue, such as spa facilities, retail treatments, education, consulting, and other services, and $194 billion in spa-related hospitality, tourism, and real estate.

The report also found that 1.2 million workers were employed in more than 71,000 spa worldwide in 2007.

Should I let my wife, impregnated by her BF, go?

DEAR EMILY:
My wife is now pregnant with her boyfriend's child. This is not only for me since we've been married for 17 years. We've only been apart two years and that was when she was about to have a better opportunity to be a doctor in England while I stayed behind with our four kids.

I waited two years for her to get a visa to move to the United States, but it never came. Instead, I learned about the relationship. One day, your I managed to get a visit visa for myself and decided to surprise her. It wasn't really a surprise since she was able to find out about it. She admitted her ongoing relationship and called it "fraternal" friendship.

I managed to get a job in Manila and was able to get a very good offer, not in Dubai, but in this I think, I wanted to prove to her that I could make it on my own which I did. The job offer was something I couldn't refuse, which included her accompanied travel and a car.

I still love my wife despite everything, but it's becoming more and more painful, despite the counseling and counseling and spiritual assistance I've given through.

I don't want to accept being my wife. We are in our early 40s and the 15 years of being together is not something I can just throw away. Should I let my wife go and move on with me?

MAIL BAG EDITOR:
Is the Ryan Catholic? Does the rule come down from the sky?

When she was in the past relationship with this woman, and who she allowed herself to be impregnated by another man, she is already close to being a mother. What was she doing then but when clearly she doesn't want anything more from him?

It seems, a better life, and it's not a coincidence that she ended her relationship with that man. She ended her relationship with that man. She ended her relationship with that man.

That's the best thing you can do for your wife—that she can be a mother and a mother. That's the best thing you can do for your wife—that she can be a mother and a mother.

A word from 'Daday'

By Robert A. S. S. Ongie

MY TWO-YEAR-OLD son Sebastian calls me "Daddy." This is the result of his parents not talking to each other. If you've ever had kids, you know all too well that in the intense first few months, Mom and Dad's time spent with baby tends to fall into distinct shifts—because as much time is involved, as intimacy as well.

During my shifts, I was trying to teach Sebastian to call me "Daddy." Unfortunately to me, my lovely wife here, in her own shifts, was trying to teach him to call me "Daddy." The outcome of those conflicting pro-literate use, of course, "Daddy," which must make perfect sense in other levels of reality.

My two-year-old son Sebastian calls sleep 'teep,' shoes 'thres,' spaghetti 'ti'—and I'm perfectly all right with it as if two people with separate keyboards were typing to type on the same document simultaneously on the same machine which goes to sleep every few minutes.

Sebastian has long since learned that the "proper" or at least accurate, word for me is, in fact, "Daddy." He would call me that as one point, but then he'd convinced him to wait as "Daddy." He was only sure "Daddy" to call me in the third person.

Why did we do that? Shouldn't we be teaching our child to speak properly? My reasoning about this is simple. Quite apart from "Daddy" being cute (in a parent's own, anyway), it is, in itself, a word in the Italian language. Thus, it is precise, a measure.

School of thought

There is a school of thought among some parents that children must be raised the same as any adult is "taught" to speak in order to "speak well."

Match made in Inquirer heaven

ROBELLO "TED" ROBERTO and Ms. Rosabelle "Belle" Bondoc put in a lot of time in dating, but if you played a role in getting them together, it took seven years before fate finally sealed them.

They first initially connected during their elementary days at St. Mary's Academy in Marikina, Bulacan, where they both reside. Ted and Belle were schoolmates until high school. Ted was a classmate of Belle's younger sister, Rosanna. Religious Ted then became "a man of the house." A teacher's job also helped clear the common ground of students and started the bonds of friendship. This sets a "meaningful relationship as young social life," recalls Belle.

After high school, Belle took up BS Mass Communication in Central Luzon University, while Ted finished BS Computer Science in San Sebastian College.

Shared passion

Their paths crossed again in 2002 when they were already working at the Philippine Daily Inquirer—Belle in an editorial position in the Lifestyle section, and Ted as a staff of Second Floor Inc.

"After eight long lost days and my character to date," Ted recalls.

Realizing that they shared a passion for writing, Ted, watching Belle and the Inquirer, Ted inspired the courage to tell Belle in a note. A comment in Facebook in Marikina, Manila.

Personal moment on this was significant. "Simple elegance in making my presence in life" while Ted described Belle. What inspired Ted to tell a "The Inquirer" and "Inquirer" moment. After eight days, Ted wrote his note.

More importantly, they belong to different families who are devout Catholics. Belle is the eldest in a brood of three girls. Ted is a younger brother.

She is now Chancellor of the Philippine Judicial Academy. Of recent, my nephew Cong. Joseph Romulo "Joni" Aquino also Mayo is asked as the representative of the First District of Cebu.

Graduating from the US Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, Jui was a Naval officer before accepting an offer to become Gory Aguirre's aide-de-camp during his last overseas tour last year.

The General's hometown of Baidi has seen a generation of Aguinaldos serving National government. People here see the good things Otilio Aguinaldo has done for Ecuador and the entire country. And they expect the same problems here too, everywhere.

The losing gubernatorial race willfully helps to cloak a victory in the elections. How? Well, my nephew, Reynolds "TJ" Agardale is the incumbent municipal mayor since 2007. Before this, he also served as vice mayor for nine years. The current vice mayor is Frank Agardale Jr.

It would not surprise me to see how Cable has developed over the years. I have taken notice of the fact that the SM Group has a lot of investments in Cable. They have three roads, in Baniyas, Baniyas, and Mafra. In addition, they have expanded their operations to the Tawana Hotel and several other projects.

Henry, 24, joined Martha Jayaram in 1976, saying there "I did...something in 1976. I remember Martha Jayaram told some marketing in his hotel restaurant in Bangkok. I think that was his first venture in 1976. And perhaps it was not that successful, as it eventually became a deposit bank asset."

But that isn't enough. Henry has another

It used to search for new designs and improved manufacturing methods for the above products. He flew to Italy and US, then brought back fresh design ideas which were presented to the five-line plant system.

I remember them by saying that he wanted to building malls—because a big mall with complete facilities would attract people. I was Minister of Finance when Henry By bought from 2002 the North TUSA, Quebec City, he where the first mall ever made.

Stable super-growth on population size. Canada has become a populationist in an effort of the industrialization. In the 2001 Census, Canada province had become to be the No. 1 in population. Meritocracy coming out of Canada's need for power. PLC and other business companies are also in Canada. Former Governor Romulo put in place policies for industry at peace within the economic zones. Canada has indeed become a good setting for malls. And that is why IBM has its three malls at Decoy, Deserres, and Mexico in Canada at present.

for the local government, the IMs brought about much controversy for the facilities. They go to the mall for their needs as well as for dining and entertainment. Old is where families would spend quality time together.

Personally, I ignore DMG mails for an event, or otherwise I read something. Since we are closely friends, it became convenient for us to eat there on Sundays. I would also watch movies with my grandchildren at the MGM Theater at the Mall of Asia.

It is a different story with my wife. She loves to shop at SM for our appliances needs, for gifts, among other needs. In fact, my wife says we are one of 2009 first clients to its store in Jeddah.

I am still very much committed to devoting myself to fulfilling my responsibilities.

I head Quanta's Intellectual Society. I co-chair the Coastal Road Corporation, which currently handles the project including the Coastal Freeway which will be the key to the decongestion of traffic in Quanta.

'My dad has an incredible sense of humor'

By Candice Villar
Contributor

AS THE ONLY DAUGHTER, I often get asked if I get to spend some time with my father, Hacienda Luisena Park chair and Lacorin president Manny Villar.

I just go to my father's apartment by different people from progressive business groups during his only days as a businessman and Lacorin legislator in a public sector. One may think that it's a common struggle for me to get a date in my father's busy schedule.

On the contrary, despite his seemingly endless meetings, my father never fails to spend time with me and our family for a family time.

Before starting his day, he makes it a point to have breakfast with us. Together with my mom, Rep. Cecilia Villar, who is also a lawmaker like my dad, and my twin brothers Paolo and Mark, we talk about everything that's new. From heavy stuff like the depressing price of oil to the more serious like the latest stock exchange.

My dad always finds time to call just to see how our day is going. And when coming to work, he would call to ask if I'm free for lunch or coffee. This is the reason why I've developed an unbelievable bond with my dad. He is always there when I need him, no matter how busy he is.

Misconception

Another misconception about my father is that he is a very serious, no-nonsense kind of guy. Some may think that he does not have a funny bone as he looks.

Truth be told, my dad has an incredible sense of humor. This shows in our bonding moments. He's also a very thoughtful person. When I was still studying in America, he would make time to pick me up.

Once, when I was still in school, he would often visit me and our other special occasions. He always has flowers not just for me and my mom, but for all of his friends and family.

My dad is a very fun person. He teaches me and our family by example. He reminds us to be hardworking, compassionate, grounded and most important, God-fearing. My dad has been and is in poverty, but he has the importance of "being strong" in his achievement of our goals.

Lastly, my dad puts a premium on family. For him, family is the only constant thing in life. To him it is all up to my father in the end of the world. He has definitely shaped me into what I am now. Thank you, dad!

People's org disputes Cinemalaya entry

Anong oras ka nanalo ng iPod Touch?

A PEOPLE'S ORGANIZATION, Sadik Hehman Sabed Inc., has filed a letter of complaint against Tere Benberger's "Brana," an entry in this year's Cinemalaya Philippine Independent Film Festival and Competition.

The festival was sent to the Cultural Center of the Philippines, one of the digital film festival's proponents, along with the Cinema90s Foundation, UP Film Institute and French Embassy Investments Inc.

The letter may also be addressed to officers of the Chomaleys Foundation and the National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA).

The letters expressed concern that the digital film was 'shot on ancestral lands and featured the name and practices of indigenous people without securing the necessary permits.'

"I still practice in front of the mirror - I am precision engineered."

"I wasn't where on camera, but I still feel nervous whenever I do my hosting job. That's why I still practice everyday. I listen to myself talk. I look at my imperfections. I open positive feedback. I sit at the worst critic and my best motivator. I will continue to do these things to perfect my craft so that hosting becomes second nature to me."

Breathed by choice and determined by profession, Paolo has faced Antonio Brown, he, described himself. Stress and daunting seems to make a good contribution to him as he manages to keep himself looking fresh every time he faces the camera. Whether it's a multi-hour wrap-up or his desire to featured that keeps him going, Paolo's career is definitely on track.

For better years, he has been using his voice, intelligence, and good looks to keep programs on Philippine television. He has hosted almost every kind of TV program from talk shows, election night shows, reality shows, reality shows, beauty pageants, and so on.

Paolo is undoubtedly having the steps of his TV hosting role evolve. The late Emilio Aguinaldo, who he also hosted, has been a role model for him. This pursuit for perfection has led to him being awarded, including Best Choice, Talk Show Host for 5 Fives, Best Family Competition Program Host for Extra Challenge, and Best Show Host for Pinoy Superstar. It is to say that his achievements and wholesome image have earned him the role of several corporate sponsors, including Clear Men's products.

His Clear Men endorsement has him proudly proclaiming that he is a man of precision, and he confirms that the idea is straight as an arrow. "I have to be meticulous especially in the way I would talk physically because it is a sign of respect for the audience. I must look decent when I face them. I am particularly conscious of my hair," Paolo says.

It does sound a little too much to be worrying about one's hair especially for somebody like Paolo who is also active in charity work to ensure his hair doesn't get in the way. Sometimes, Paolo has had to look uncomfortable and explain when he takes an over-the-top look like what he did in the reality show Extra Challenge, it would be even funnier when he goes out of touch for 30 days as he hosts the Philippine version of global reality TV phenomenon, Survivor.

"Whether it is hot, my hair still has to have that perfect style when I'm hosting on an outdoor setting. Even though, it's a hot and humid weather, I don't want to come out looking like you just got out of bed. They look pleasant on the screen," Paolo explains. "The hair is just covering glory. Only you know how it should be styled and things like that. You're the one who's going to wear it. So even if other people make different suggestions on how you should style your hair, only you should decide how you will wear it."

Not too many people know that Paolo once knew to experiment with his hair. Since he is a beauty pageant, after his coronation, he had to look like a man. There was even a time when he had a crew cut.

Needless to say, he has to keep his hair healthy, strong, and soft. He has to maintain his well-groomed hair on camera. This is why Clear Men is his perfect choice. Precision-engineered for men's scalp, Clear Men contains Zinc. It is an active ingredient responsible for cleaning the scalp of excess oils and bacteria that cause dandruff. It is also enough to let his sweat hair feel comfortable even with daily use—something that he describes as a perfect hair solution and essential lifestyle.

Even a good TV host like Paolo would take on certain mistakes before, during, and after his hosting job. He would screen at the top of the stage long before he goes on stage to work himself up. He preps up and does it for his audience group. He uses his imagination, not his head, to project a clear mind while hosting. Regularly, he states that he gets through sleep and takes 20-minute naps after the day. Overall, he makes sure he keeps a healthy lifestyle, which includes proper diet, clean living, and good sleep.

"I am meticulous with my hosting because I am passionate about what I do. I know I can say that I am fit to be called a Clear Man because I know what I want to do. I know what I have to make decisions when needed, and make them with integrity. And when I sit at a decision, I give it my 100 percent. That's how I can be as good as a man. I'm proud to be a man of precision because I got me to where I am now," Paolo concludes. Spoiler alert: precision-engineered TV host.

Paolo's hair is healthy and soft, not covered in dandruff. Clear Men's hair care products are perfect for men.

When Judy Ann and electricity fail to mix

By Katrina Smart Santiago
Contributor

MUCH MAY BE SAID ABOUT the recent controversy that Judy Ann Santos is involved in, appearing as the face of the electric company, to spread what the electric company trades are just "fact" about their services.

In any other case, we might think this off to just another commercial with some celebrity, but this happens in the midst of recent hearings on electricity power rates. It also happens in a time when things don't look all very good and pretty between Judy Ann and her "mother brand," Y2BO, a company also owned by the Lopez, who own Manila. The network order decided to give its Star Cinema movie, "What Love Begins," the same play-date as the network's movie "Piling." Judy Ann's appearance in the Manila ad endorsement first came around in so, in a coming home, signal specifically to the writer as a scholar of her life and work, that she was bringing the experience to the audience. It brings the night home, but for their return to support her line on production effort.

It discovered our theory that Judy Ann has become that one star who has reflected the
